

Abstract of the Disclosure:

The clamping device is used to adjust at least one register element in a printing machine. The device has an upper clamping rail, to which the register element is fixed. The upper clamping rail can be moved in a guide and fixed in position in order to adjust the register element.

WHS:tk-A-2865F//8/10/2001